

Spring Fever

It sure feels like Spring. While the official first day of spring is March 20, we know there may still be plenty of winter-like weather ahead! One of the most challenging gardening endeavors in our mountain community can be practicing restraint. We see blooms down the hill, but other than a few cold-hardy stalwarts (the Garden Center can advise), we should wait.

While we received a fair amount of snow this winter, keep the requirements for winter watering in mind. Until we get those spring showers, if your landscaping is not under a blanket of snow and the temperature is over 40 degrees you should be watering, especially anything that has been planted in the last 2 years.

This recent warm weather is perfect for spring clean-up, let our maintenance division know if you need some help. As always, we are happy to provide you with a free estimate for any maintenance or landscaping work you have been contemplating. We look forward to seeing you and helping you with all your landscaping and gardening needs in the coming year.

Linda's Garden Center Tip

Be mindful that we live in a semi-arid climate where water is precious. So, while spring snows may sometimes be annoying, remember they are really blessings, and wildflowers love them. You can sow seed now.

When the tender shoots of spring bulbs push through the snow, be sure to have some Bobbex or Liquid Fence to spray on them to protect them from critters. Need color? Pot up some cold-tolerant pansies and primroses.
